

COVID-19 SERIES: FROM CRISIS TO RECOVERY

The Path to a Vaccine for COVID-19

The world is anxiously awaiting the development of a safe and effective vaccine for COVID-19. Researchers around the globe are working on a rapidly growing number of vaccine candidates, many of which are moving quickly to clinical trials. This panel will present an opportunity to consider important legal, policy and ethical considerations. Topics will include the role of open science in the drug discovery continuum, issues associated with emergency use and pre-approval access, and clinical trial ethics with a focus on the World Health Organization's recently released guidelines.
