The 2014 JSGS Case Competition first place team and judges.

What is a case competition?

Case competitions are valuable experiential learning opportunities for students to test their knowledge and ability to think quickly and critically in a simulated role play scenario.

The top students from the JSGS Case Competition go on to represent the school in the 2016 IPAC/CAPPA National Public Administration Case Competition hosted by the uOttawa in Ottawa in February.

How does it work?

Students teams are judged on their ability to provide options and recommendations on complex policy issues to a panel of experienced and professional judges. Students will be required to analyze two different cases throughout the day, and to develop both a written policy brief and a verbal presentation. Participation in the JSGS Case Competition is worth three JSGS 990 credits.

This event would not be possible without the generous support of our sponsor, SaskTel.
